Cookies

Our site uses cookies to keep track of your visits to our web site. A cookie is a small file that can be stored by your browser on your computer's hard drive. We may use these to do a number of things and the intention is to improve your online experience. We use cookies to deliver contents specific to your interest and to save your password so that you don't have to re-enter it every time you visit our site. Cookies help us to recognise when you next visit our web site and note the advertisements displayed to you. This allows us to tailor the service we provide to your preferences. We may use them as a way of measuring our service and to work with marketing partners to improve our service. You can usually change your browser so that it will not accept cookies.

Security of your personal information

We take the security of your personal information very seriously. Our online services protect your personal information during transit using encryption such as Transport Layer Security (TLS). When your personal data is stored by us, we use computer systems with limited access housed in facilities using physical security measures. All data held by us is kept using encrypted storage.

Changes to this Privacy Policy

We may update this Privacy Policy, if we make major changes, we will update you.

This policy was last updated in January 2020.

How long we retain your personal information

We will keep hold of your personal information for no longer than necessary. The length of time we retain it will depend on any legal obligations we have, the nature of any contracts we have in place with you or the existence of your consent. We do not retain personal information in an identifiable format for longer than is necessary.
